DAILY DEMOCRAT.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY Harney, Hughes & Co.

READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 19, 1898.

THE EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL has broken in, in admiration of the tax-paying qualification, which has been struck him and he is very glad to see that he claims all the merit for himself and his party, and acquits the Democrats of the Legislature of any participation in the deed, except from negligence. He is very welcome to the credit and glory of the measure he is pleased with; as far as we are concerned, he may call it his measure.

He says it is a registry law, and chuckles over the fact, that whilst the Democrats would not pass such a law for the State, they did give Louisville one, by an oversight. We rather guess it was not an oversight. The majority of this city, at one of those events called elections, had asked for the measure, and the Democrats gave them what they wanted.

It is a registry law, it would be unconstitutional in this State, and therefore Democrats would not pass it, if there were no other objections.

The editor of the Journal forces this tax-paying qualification is going to be very unpopular in his own party; and he appeals to his prejudices, by telling them that the law will shut out foreigners from the polls; the Americans pay their tax, and it will, therefore, not operate against them. Hundreds of them know exactly how that is, and they will teach the editor and his party that they understand it. He can't pull wool over their eyes that way. They have the right of suffrage, if they can spare one dollar and fifty cents twenty days to do it; and they must hunt up a collector to do it.

We regard these registry laws, tax-paying, or property qualifications, etc., as all means of the same class, designed to block up the way to the ballot-box, and give to political schemers only that much better chance to get and hold office in spite of the popular will. There are no many voters for the sake of some political qualification; and they vote on the wrong side. If there were fewer of them, and some contrivances to make voting a little complicated and difficult, the few-pullers, who have a divine right to office, would have a better chance. It is a great outrage, they think, that so many common people, so many poor people, and even foreigners, should vote, when they will not vote right.

We shall not discuss the effect of these laws.

They don't protect the ballot-box from frauds; to the contrary, they increase the chances of fraud. They have been tried, and repudiated again and again. We tried this tax-paying qualification in Louisville, and rejected it; and the result will be the same with this experiment. It is obvious to all, that the party that has most money, has most voters, and buys them by paying their taxes, most likely to succeed. It is a scheme to promote corruption and fraud, and give money, and not numbers, the control of Louisville. If we had been a legislator, we should never have voted for such a law, no matter who wanted it.

But does the editor of the Democrat understand the nature of the tax-paying qualification? Does he say, or imply, that Congress has the right to establish slavery in the territories, against the voice and will of the people?—Louisville Journal.

No, we shall not undertake to say any such thing; but the editor of the Journal has understood that it is infamous, degrading, and in all ways execrable, to say that the people of a territory will have their say, if they are opposed to slavery; and we are exceedingly against the popular will. The editor of the Journal has said this. He has, in substance, execrated this resolution.

The editor of the Louisville Journal says a great many Americans have been ignorant of the fact, therefore, that they owed a poll-tax to the city; and now some of them seem to think that the Legislature has imposed a specific tax upon each person, and have its payment

Ladies' Department.

If the "melancholy days" have not come, they begin to cast their shadows before them, and visions of in-door comfort begin to troop before us—visions of the cozy corner by the blazing fire of the delightful ladies' department, where intruding eyes need not, and open ears need not of the social evening gathering—the musical soiree, and more formal conversations; and the joys of out-door sports—fishing over fields and corners, wrapped in the warm rays of the sun, and the merry laughter of a happy companion, to the cheerful laugh, while the horses put in the dust of excitement; the regular patient and the short of excitement. But we forget our readers will please excuse us.
